DESCRIPTION

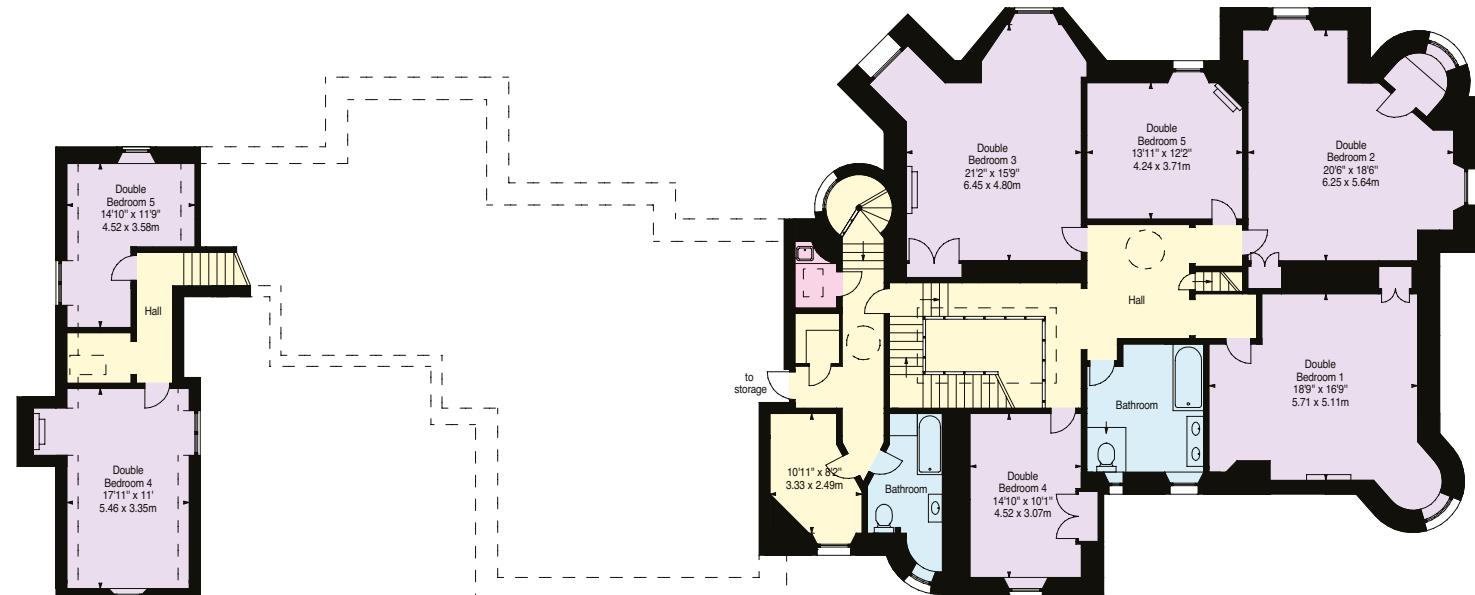

Avallon is an exceptional Grade A listed Baronial-style villa, designed by the eminent Scottish architect David Bryce, set within substantial and private grounds in the heart of the highly regarded Morningside district. Opportunities to acquire a property of this architectural pedigree, scale and setting in such a prime central Edinburgh location are exceptionally rare.

The principal house at 2 Clinton Road is an imposing yet elegant residence, displaying many of the defining characteristics of Bryce's Baronial design, including finely detailed stonework and a commanding architectural presence. While retaining significant historic character, the property is now in need of development and modernisation, offering an incoming purchaser a rare opportunity to re-imagine and restore the house to their own specification, subject to the necessary consents. The scale and layout provide considerable flexibility, with the potential to create a truly outstanding family home tailored to individual requirements.

In addition, the estate includes the charming lodge house at 2A Clinton Road, positioned within the grounds. This secondary dwelling is also now in need of development, presenting further opportunity for refurbishment or reconfiguration, and offering excellent potential for independent accommodation, guest use or ancillary living.

Set within extensive, mature grounds, Avallon enjoys a rare sense of privacy and seclusion while remaining exceptionally well placed for Morningside's wide range of amenities, respected schooling, green spaces and convenient access to Edinburgh city centre. Taken together, the combination of architectural significance, development potential, landholding and location represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity within one of Edinburgh's most desirable residential neighbourhoods.
