Kingston Farm

The land at Kingston Farm extends to approximately 255 acres in total and is predominantly arable with some pasture and woodland. All of the arable land is currently farmed under a Contract Farming Agreement.

History

Kingston Farm has been in the Thwaites family for over 100 years. Bought by Captain Sidney Herbert Thwaites, a member of the Lancashire Thwaites brewing family, it passed to his son Lesley Basil Thwaites, a renowned Warwickshire businessman.

Basil Thwaites was a prolific inventor and engineer, famous for inventing the first site dumper truck in 1957, using farm machinery, providing a cutting-edge design and machine which revolutionised construction sites and is still used today globally.

He founded Thwaites Ltd in 1937, built and established his first workshop in Cubbington, Leamington Spa where the factory still stands, 86 years later, where it is a well-established part of the community and significant local employer.

Basil focused on modernising agricultural machinery and processes during the war but in 1945 moved into construction products during the 'Build Back Better' strategy: inventing mechanical solutions to enable developers and builders to build much needed new homes safer and more efficiently.

His many inventions and machines were tested and demonstrated on the farm.

The Land

The principal block, extends to 226 acres and comprises 207 acres of arable, 4 acres of pasture and 6 acres of woodland. The block has wonderful far-reaching views and lends itself to a diverse range of uses. Proposed plans have been drawn and submitted for the relocation of the grain store to the east, in the adjacent field. A further triangular block of approximately 30 acres of arable sits to the north of the principal block.

Access is via Plough Lane between Bishop's Itchington and Harbury, and also Chesterton. Internal access is via a series of well-maintained tarmac roads.

On the farm is 1 Kingston Barn Cottages which has four bedrooms and is agriculturally tied to the farm. The cottage is occupied under a life tenancy.
