The outbreak of the Novel Coronavirus (COVID-19), declared by the World Health Organisation as a "Global Pandemic" on 11 March 2020, has and continues to impact many aspects of daily life and the global economy - with some real estate markets having experienced lower levels of transactional activity and liquidity. The pandemic and the measures taken to tackle COVID-19 continue to affect economies and real estate markets globally. Nevertheless, property markets are mostly functioning again, with transaction volumes and other relevant evidence at levels where an adequate quantum of market evidence exists upon which to base opinions of value. On 9 September 2020 the Material Valuation Uncertainty Clause was lifted from all UK real estate excluding some assets valued with reference to trading potential. A valuation of such a property may therefore still be reported as being subject to "material valuation uncertainty" as defined by VPS 3 and VPQA 10 of the RICS Valuation - Global Standards; consequently, less certainty - and a higher degree of caution - should be attached to the valuations of these assets than would normally be the case. Travel, movement and operational restrictions have been implemented again by many countries. In some cases, "lockdowns" have been applied to varying degrees and to reflect further "waves" of COVID-19; although these may imply a new stage of the crisis, they are not unprecedented in the same way as the initial impact. Given the unknown future impact that COVID-19 might have on the real estate market and the difficulty in differentiating between short term impacts and long-term structural changes, we recommend keeping valuations under regular review.
