Having been brought up in North Somerset and schooled at The Downs School in Wraxall and Clifton College, you would think I would be biased. I think I am but it is difficult to ignore Bristol’s vibrancy and diversity. Add the superb countryside on its doorstep, the area is hard to beat.

Clifton benefits from some of the South West’s most beautiful architecture coupled with large open spaces such as the Durdham Downs. As a village, Clifton boasts a superb café and food culture which is growing daily. With the rail line becoming electrified, we will be even closer to London.

Clifton is a great place to live if you love culture, vibrancy, water and stunning countryside on the doorstep. I was fortunate enough to be brought up in Bristol and the Chew Valley, then travelled the world, I came back!

Bristol has a wealth of history and fabulous architecture. It is a fun and energetic city with a cosmopolitan feel. There’s so much to do – where do you start?

Having gone to UWE all those years ago, the thing I like most about working with the Bristol office is finally seeing all the lovely townhouses that I knew about but never actually saw. Equally, the country market around Bristol is incredibly diverse, with Mid and North Somerset being very different from South Gloucestershire. It is a challenging but interesting market and one I love.

2015 Forecast

2014 saw another steady rise in property values in the UK outside of London, yet the price differential between those and properties in the capital remains at a record level meaning that the country is great value for those looking to trade up and out. However, uncertainty as a result of the upcoming General Election means that the market is undoubtedly going to differ this year. In spite of this, we expect demand will continue to increase, particularly in light of recent tax changes, especially for properties valued below £1m.

Property prices for houses in the country have been rising for seven consecutive quarters, the longest period of sustained quarterly price growth since 2007.

Rising confidence among buyers as a result of more positive economic news, the ripple effect from London and growing demand for family homes has resulted in improved conditions in the market in 2014, helping to release some of the pent-up demand that had built up following the downturn.

Figures released by the Land Registry confirm this. Over the year to September 2014, the number of homes sold for over £500,000 in England and Wales was 42% higher than at the same time last year and 74% higher than the corresponding period in 2010.

Properties in the southeast, within commutable range of a city and close to good schools have sold well. Continued low interest rates and attractive mortgage offers have also encouraged buyers to act.

Agents report that demand has been bolstered by an increase in the number of buyers looking to take advantage of the gap between urban and rural values, particularly those moving from London. Prices in the country look good value on a historical basis having experienced several years of static or modest growth since the end of the financial crisis.

To illustrate this point, houses in the country have risen in value by 74% and are 32% above their previous peak, making the country good value for those wishing to trade up and out.

But there are signs that the momentum seen during the first half of the year has eased. Uncertainty as a result of the upcoming General Election means that the market is undoubtedly going to differ this year. In spite of this, we expect demand will continue to increase, particularly in light of recent tax changes, especially for properties valued below £1m.

There is some positive news however. Reforms to property taxation announced by the Chancellor during the Autumn Statement mean that the majority of home purchasers will pay lower levels of stamp duty when buying a house. As a result of the changes those buying homes worth up to £397,500 will see their tax bills reduced. Additionally, there is an anomaly between £1,000,001 and £1,124,990 where less tax is payable under the new system.

The proposals are likely to be welcomed by buyers, ultimately increasing transaction levels below the £397,500 threshold. That is likely to have a knock on positive impact on consumer sentiment.

Against this backdrop, we are forecasting price growth of 2% across the country market in 2015, with outperformance in some locations driven by increased demand and, in some cases, improvements to infrastructure.

Homes located in town and city markets will see above average price growth driven by demand from those relocating from London and downsizers. Markets within commutable distance of the capital will also outperform. We are forecasting that price growth for family homes in the South East, South West and East of England will outpace local mainstream markets as values are boosted further by the “ripple effect” from London.

London Expansion

The London property market has always driven activity outside of the capital, as Londoners sell or let their homes and seek greater value for money in different parts of the UK.

Outside of Prime Central London, we have seen growth in traditionally affordable areas, with sales price increases of up to 14% in parts of zone two over the last 12 months. These increases see those sellers in North West London and along the River Thames achieving record prices for their homes.

At Knight Frank, our team of experienced analysts are continually looking for the next hotspots in order to embrace the increased demand in these areas. We were therefore delighted to open four new offices in London in 2014. The addition of these offices in Barnes, Clapham, King’s Cross and Chiswick means our London network now totals 24, and there are plans for further expansion this year.

This increased catchment area means we are better placed than ever to drive cash buyers to our country properties. In addition, the considerable growth of our lettings division has meant that we can assist those clients who are not yet looking to cash in their investment, but still wish to move out of London. The lettings team work closely with our relocations team to place international corporate tenants, often for up to three years, to ensure buyers from London still have the steady stream of income needed to facilitate a move.

With the net widening it is vital that any agent with a London presence covers the key growth areas. A move to the country is no longer the leap it might once have been considered by many hardened city dwellers, as what are described as “London’s villages” are becoming increasingly prevalent. Moving to one of these areas first is becoming the preference amongst many families, with them acting as a stepping stone to the countryside further out of London. James Williams, head of Knight Frank Barnes says: “It is fantastic to now have a shop front in such a wonderful location. It is such a friendly environment to work in”. With the fashion being a two-stage move, we can now nurture long-term relationships with our clients. So whether they are looking for a different pace altogether or a move to a smaller town or city, we are able to put them in touch with a Knight Frank agent for every step they wish to take.

If selling a property is one of your plans for 2015, now is the time to speak to an expert. Whilst others are waiting on the outcome of the forthcoming election, we are anticipating a busy start to the year.

So, at a time when staying one step ahead has never been more important, will you be one of the first movers in 2015?
